DETAILED ACTION

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 6-10, 12, 19, and 20 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. The declaration of Dr. A. B. Johnson et al filed under 37 C.F.R. 1.132 has also been considered but is also moot in view of the new grounds of rejection set forth below.

Claims 6-10, 12, 19, and 20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. This is a written description rejection.

The claimed invention is drawn to antibodies and antibody fragments that act as inhibitors of NET-4. The antibodies can be monoclonal antibodies or humanized antibodies (claims 7 and 8, for example). The claimed invention also includes methods of using such antibodies to inhibit NET-4 activity in mammalian cells and for the treatment of disease.

The instant specification discloses antisense inhibitors of a NET-4 nucleic acid, but provides no disclosure of any antibodies that inhibit any NET-4 activity.

The specification discloses no nucleic acid or protein sequence which corresponds to NET-4. However, the use of the broad term "NET-4 without any specific definition of its structure encompasses sequences corresponding sequences from other species, mutated sequences, allelic variants, splice variants, and so forth.

The specification does not provide any disclosure of any NET-4 structure.

The claimed invention is therefore drawn to the use of inhibitors that have not been adequately described to inhibit a broad range of potential NET-4 targets that have not been adequately described.

Vas-Cath Inc. v. Mahurkar, 19 USPQ2d 1111, makes clear that "applicant must convey with reasonable clarity to those skilled in the art that, as of the filing date sought, he or she was in possession of the invention. The invention is, for purposes of the 'written description' inquiry, whatever is now claimed." (See page 1117.) The specification does not "clearly allow persons of ordinary skill in the art to recognize that [he or she] invented what is claimed." (See Vas-Cath at page 1116.)

The skilled artisan cannot envision the detailed chemical structure of the encompassed targeted Net-4 proteins required to make the antibodies of the invention regardless of the complexity or simplicity of the method of isolation. Adequate written description requires more than a mere statement that it is part of the invention and reference to a potential method for isolating it. See Fiers v. Revel, 25 USPQ2d 1601, 1606 (CAFC 1993) and Amgen Inc. V. Chugai Pharmaceutical Co. Ltd., 18 USPQ2d 1016. In Fiddes v. Baird, 30 USPQ2d 1481, 1483, claims directed to mammalian FGF's were found unpatentable due to lack of written description for the broad class. The specification provided only the bovine sequence.

The instant specification appears to claim a method of treatment where a compound that is necessary to practice that method has been described only in terms of its function, and where the only means provided for finding such a compound is essentially a trial and error process. The instant specification asserts that one could use antibodies of the invention to inhibit NET-4, however there is no disclosure that would specify which antibodies have the desired characteristic of inhibiting NET-4 activity, for example. The specification fails to provide sufficiently detailed, relevant identifying characteristics of the antibodies that have the capacity to inhibit NET-4 as broadly undefined which may include functional characteristics coupled with a known or disclosed correlation between function and structure.

The species specifically disclosed are not representative of the genus because the genus is highly variant. Applicant is reminded that Vas-Cath makes clear that the written description provision of 35 USC 112 is severable from its enablement provision. (See page 1115.)
